1. Provision in the Time Table during Mentor Hours:

To encourage and facilitate students to undergo self-study courses online and offline, schools can integrate dedicated time slots into the timetable during mentor hours. This structured approach ensures that students have the opportunity to focus on their personal learning interests and academic goals within the school environment. Here's how this can be effectively implemented:

Structured Time Allocation

Designating specific mentor hours for self-study within the timetable ensures that students have regular, uninterrupted periods dedicated to their self-directed learning. This not only reinforces the importance of self-study but also helps students develop time management skills. These sessions can be scheduled weekly allowing students to progress consistently through their chosen courses.

- E-Resources Web Portal:

Development of an E-Resources Web Portal: A dedicated web portal can be developed to provide centralized access to various digital resources. This portal can include e-books, journals, research papers, databases, and other academic materials. It serves as a one-stop platform for students and faculty to easily search, access, and download relevant content.

- Digital Information Resource Centre (DIRC):

Establishment of a Digital Information Resource Centre (DIRC): DIRC can be established to manage and curate digital content, providing users with a vast repository of e-resources. The centre can facilitate digital literacy programs, helping users navigate and utilize digital tools and resources effectively.

- QR-Code Based Access of UGC Digital Initiatives:

QR-Code Based UGC Digital Initiatives: By implementing QR codes for accessing UGC digital initiatives such as Swayam, e-PG Patashala, Vidyamitra, and Swayamprabha, users can quickly access educational content. QR codes can be placed strategically around the campus and within the library, allowing students and faculty to scan and access resources on their mobile devices instantly.

- Reference Services:

Comprehensive Reference Services: Reference services can be enhanced by offering personalized assistance to users in locating information and using library resources. This includes help with research queries, guidance on using databases, and support for academic projects. Librarians can provide virtual consultations, enabling remote access to reference services.

Provision of Reprography Services: Reprography services, including photocopying, scanning, and printing, can be offered to meet the diverse needs of library users. These services support academic and research activities by enabling users to reproduce necessary documents and materials efficiently.

- Integration and Promotion:

To promote these services, regular workshops, training sessions, and orientation programs can be conducted. These initiatives can familiarize users with the available resources and services, ensuring they can make the most of what the library offers. Feedback mechanisms can be implemented to continuously improve the services based on user needs and preferences.

3. Computer Lab Facility:

- Provision of 33 Computers:

Setting up 33 high-performance computers within the library can greatly enhance access to digital resources. These computers should be equipped with the latest software necessary for academic research, word processing, data analysis, and other educational activities. They can be arranged in a dedicated computer lab or distributed across the library to ensure accessibility.

- Regular Maintenance and Upgradation

Ensuring that these computers are regularly maintained and upgraded to keep pace with technological advancements and prevent downtime.

- High-Speed Internet Connectivity:

Providing a robust 250 Mbps internet connection ensures that all digital services, including online databases, e-resources, and educational platforms, are accessible without interruptions. This high-speed internet can support multiple users simultaneously, enabling smooth streaming, fast downloads, and efficient browsing.

- Wi-Fi Accessibility:

Offering comprehensive Wi-Fi coverage throughout the library ensures that students and faculty can connect their personal devices to the internet seamlessly. This can be achieved by strategically placing multiple Wi-Fi access points to eliminate dead zones and provide consistent connectivity.

4. Mentorship and Guidance

During these mentor hours, teachers can take on the role of facilitators, providing guidance and support to students as they navigate their self-study courses. Mentors can help students set realistic goals, choose appropriate courses, and track their progress. This personalized attention ensures that students remain motivated and are able to overcome any challenges they encounter.
